About SAGE

What is SAGE?

The Statistics, Analytics, and GIS for Energy (SAGE) conference is a two-day conference bringing together leading practitioners, innovators, and subject matter experts in data science, GIS, statistics, and analytics to address challenges and opportunities in the energy sector, with a focus on natural gas. The event provides an intimate opportunity for leaders and practitioners to showcase and learn about cutting-edge solutions and technologies, exchange insights, and explore the role of data and geospatial technologies in the success of their operations. The conference's keynote speakers, technical sessions, demonstrations, and networking opportunities present an opportunity to engage with an audience at the forefront of creating innovative, data-driven energy systems.

Where:

Hosted in-person by GTI Energy on campus at the Eddie Johnston Center located in Des Plaines, Illinois.

When:

August 13 and 14, 2025
